Hello Year 9,

I hope you and your families are well and keeping safe in this challenging time.

With only just over two weeks left of this academic year please try and keep focused. I will be sharing an end of year assembly next week. Please take the time to watch this as it will provide you with information on next year and we will be giving out various awards.

Take care and stay safe.

Be Kind by Callum Hutchinson – Kindness Challenge winner

For me being kind is being able to help someone or make someone smile. Helping classmates with schoolwork, carrying bits for teachers, it feels good to get a thank you for helping. During lockdown I have cheered my mum up by cooking dinner and making her cold coffees. Helped my nan with her garden, cleaning her oven and cleaning the washing machine filter as it was too low for her to reach.

I love doing bbq's and we recently had a socially distanced bbq in nan's garden. I got great satisfaction out of getting thanked for doing it.

My dog Patch and I have a better bond since I have been walking and training him more during lockdown.

Even with my gaming I got a new controller for my xbox as wore out the old one and it came with a 14-day free trial. I put a message online about it and another youngster said he would love it as he can't have games you have to buy and even if it was only just 14 days he could play with his friends. I know how this feels when you can't join in, so gave him the code. He was so happy to get it. It felt good to be able to help.

I will do my best to continue listening to the teachers and stop chatting in class and distracting my classmates.

A message from Mrs Amatruda – Mental Health Lead and Y9 AYAC

Hello Year 9,

Thank you to all those students that entered the Kindness Challenge. It is so heart-warming to see the ways in which you have been kind to your families and to each other during lock-down. You have also shown me some wonderful ways in which you are going to be kind to peers and staff when you return to school.

You will see that Ms Johnson has published some of the wonderful entries in this bulletin, but I would like to give a special mention to Ellie Newman and Callum Hutchinson who have won the challenge for Year 9. They have both been awarded several achievement points, had positive phone calls home and have earned an entry into the Principal's E-Book.

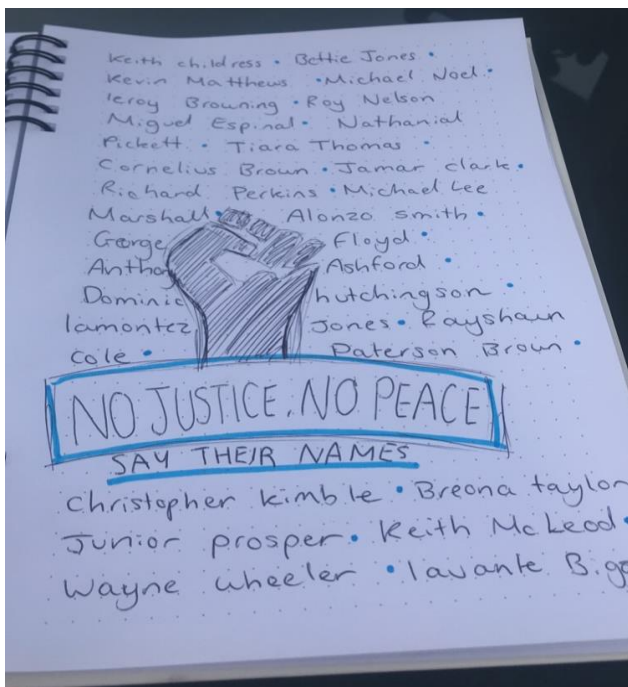

Remember, it's nice to be important but more important to be nice!

Slide 3- what I think

In the image below I can see a memorial on a wall of George Floyd who was tragically killed in Minnesota on the 25 May 2020. He was killed from a police officer kneeling on his neck causing George Floyd to not get enough oxygen and therefore passing away.

I believe this memorial could of been part of a peaceful protest in which the protesters decided to show the world George Floyd and to share his story

This makes me feel horrified that a police man who is meant to be there to protect us could kill an innocent man

Kindness Challenge winner Ellie Newman

Kindness Challenge: 1) Kindness is being generous and considerate to others. 2) Since lockdown I have been kind by Donating drinks and chocolates for children, Helped clean the house, Cleaned up after the pets, Helped preparing food and drinks and spending more time with my siblings. 3) To be kind to my peers and teachers when returning to school I will try to pay more attention in lessons.

Challenge:

1) Kindness is good for you as witnessing or completing kind acts produces oxytocin, which aids in lowering blood pressure and improving the health of the heart. Oxytocin also increases self esteem and optimism.

2) A small, fragile boy walked through the empty streets on a cold winters night. The frail boy wore nothing but a little red jumper and a pair of ripped dungarees, the base of his shoes were full of holes and worn down. The streets were icy and bare there was no one around, no animals, no people, no plants or shops. Just the lonely road. A big car drove past him, splashing water that had gathered at the side of the road straight at him, leaving him completely drenched. He stood there shivering as a cold wind twirled around him. The car suddenly stopped, just in front of where the cold boy stood. A short lady jumped out of the car and made her way towards the child, standing in the middle of the pavement. He noticed the woman was carrying a backpack over one of her shoulders, as she stopped in front of him and pulled a towel out of her bag. The small lady placed the towel on the little boy's shoulders. "Come on." She said with a gentle smile "Follow me." The boy nodded and followed her back to her car, looking puzzled. The woman looked back to him once they reached her car "Get in." She whispered softly "I'll help you get cleaned up" He looked up at the lady and then climbed into the car. The lady got into the car and starting driving again. "Sorry for splashing you with that dirty puddle water" "Are you okay?" She had a certain sincerity in her voice to which the fragile boy couldn't help but smile "It's okay, I forgive you" He exclaimed happily. The kind woman couldn't help but smile back at him.

After a while, they arrived at the lady's house. She got out of her car and opened the door for the little boy and helped him out of the car. Once they had got into the house, the lady turned around, handed him some clean clothes and said "Here take these, upstairs is a bathroom on the left." "You should go and clean up" The boy gratefully took the clothes and walked up the stairs and into the bathroom. Once he had finished, he put on the clean clothes and walked back downstairs, to which he saw that the kind woman had prepared a feast for the boy. He smiled softly as she offered him a seat at the table. As she plated up his food, the little boy looked at the food on the table. There was turkey, roasted potatoes, a huge variety of vegetables as well as fruit and ice cream for dessert. on the table. There was turkey, roasted potatoes, a huge variety of vegetables as well as fruit and ice cream for dessert. The lady offered him a room to stay in after his hearty meal and from then raised him as her own.

A few years later, the small boy had grown enough for him to get a job and move out, however the kind lady, who had taken him in had grown weaker and even smaller than she was before but she was happy to see that he was stronger than when she first found him on the streets. She smiled and waved as he drove away from his home and guardian.

A little while after the boy moved out, the kind lady had grown ill. She decided to go to the hospital to see what was wrong. The doctor told her that she had a treatable disease however, she didn't have enough money to pay for the cure to her illness. The boy that she helped so many years ago, had heard that she was ill and drove over immediately and payed the doctor to cure the kind woman. He stayed there all night and once the woman woke up gave her a big hug and thanked her for all the years she had looked after him. Once she got out of hospital, he took her back home and they continued to live together and protect each other till the end.

Kindness Challenge

1) How do you define kindness?

Kindness to me is acting caring towards someone you don't know that well or you do know well. It could be as simple as keeping a door open for someone or saying hello to them in the mornings

2) List all the ways you have been kind since lock-down

1. checked up on the people close to me, like online friends and school friends
2. offered to help my siblings with school
3. baked for my family
4. helped my dad's girlfriend cook whilst at his house
5. helped my online friend with her english essay
6. stayed on the phone with my friend when he was upset about missing his boyfriend

3) How are you going to be kind to your peers and teachers when you return to school?

I would probably ask my peers how they've been coping through lock-down and offer my comfort to them if they need someone to talk to. For my teachers, I would also ask how they've been through lock-down. I would be on my best behaviour too so that they don't have added stress and complete my work to the best of my ability.

Danny Smith But what about Mr. Forgotten?

As we mope around depressed for our own depressing lives have we forgotten the harsh reality that faces us like a bad memory?

I watch the people pass on by as if I am as dangerous as a thousand knives

But has man forgotten that a man's greed is more powerful that another's energy?

As we mope around depressed for our own depressing lives
do we forget the truth that all of us fear to experience?

With greed any man can strive

But who am I to say that the man should reexperience?

As we mope around depressed for our own depressing lives
does man forget all the times we had together?

I look upon this crooked challenging world and wonder

Is a man's life weaker than a feather?

As we mope around depressed for our own depressing lives
has man really forgotten me?

As man walks home with his wives

Now I know that I am alone but now I can see...

Kindness Challenge – Caitlin Murphy

1. I would define kindness as being nice to people and doing thoughtful things for them and treating them with respect.
2. I have done many kind things during lockdown: helped my mum around the house, cooked dinner, got my nan her shopping, helped my sister when she was sad, brought some cakes for my mum and dad and many more things.

I will be kind to my peers by helping them with the work they find difficult and cheer them up when they may feel down. I will be kind to my teachers by thanking them for all the things they do for us. I will also help them clean up

National Writing day.
The jokes are in charge!
It is a <sup>clique</sup> to say
The world has gone mad.
But it definitely has today
Because our leaders are so bad.
The satirists are jokes are writing themselves
The satirists are finding it hard
This is an insane time
The jokes are in charge!
Mr. Trump with his orange skin and blonde hair
Complains and stops funding WHO
Sits behind his desktop in his White House chair
Tweeting about how it's all China's fault
Instead of concerning of the health of you.
The satirists are finding it hard
The jokes are in charge!

Football Poem

Football is my game,
I watch it,
I play it,
I know all the players by name,

Football has been stopped
I can't play it,
I can't watch it,
This summer has flopped

Football is back on,
I can play it,
I can watch it,
I can't wait to play it and have fun

Task 2. Effects of Climate Change

Freshwater has been seriously having serious effects from climate change. There are more flooding and droughts. The impacts are more flooding and droughts. Warmer air can hold a higher water content, which makes rainfall patterns more extreme.

Rivers and lakes supply drinking water for people and animals and are a vital resource for farming and industry. They are also home to many animals, such as crayfish and waterfowl. Climate change is not the only problem faced by freshwater, they are already under excessive pressure from drainage, dredging, damming, pollution, extraction, silt and invasive species. Extremes of drought and flooding will become more common, causing displacement and conflict.

In mountainous regions, melting glaciers are impacting on freshwater ecosystems. Glaciers from the Himalayan feed Asian rivers such as the Yangtze, Yellow, Ganges, Mekong and Indus. Over a billion people rely on these glaciers for drinking water, sanitation, agriculture and hydroelectric power.

Challenge

The 2 myths about climate change that I thought were true were 'The Earth's climate has always changed' and 'climate getting rid of humans will fix this'.

Dylan Aziz

School Closure: Climate Change project work

1. What is Climate Change?

Climate change is when extra carbon dioxide is in the atmosphere increases the greenhouse effect. The greenhouse effect is a naturally occurring phenomenon which is very beneficial to us. The greenhouse gases, (Carbon dioxide, Methane and Water Vapour) Allow radiation from the Sun to pass through and warm the earth. However, the greenhouse gases are trapping too much thermal energy which is causing the planet's overall temperature to rise higher than it should. This is also known as Global Warming.

2. What are the effects of Climate Change on the polar regions?

The Polar ice caps are by far the most sensitive areas to climate change on Earth. This is because the changes in the amount of sea ice can disrupt normal ocean circulation. This leads to changes in climate. Even the smallest increase in temperature can lead to greater warming over time, which, in turn, leads to the melting of the polar ice caps. This then leads to a further increase in the amount of water in the ocean. Furthermore, animals like polar bears are losing their natural habitats, so this is causing a decrease in their population.

Shallower than they used to be most of the land is submerged
Slowing down as they melt
Animals are stranded

Climate Change is when the earth is getting hotter by global warming. It will increase the temperature of the earth. The three greenhouse gases are carbon dioxide, methane, and nitrous oxide. The sun's radiation is absorbed by the earth and converted into heat but then cannot freely leave the planet due to greenhouse affects.

LIDC – HEALTHCARE OR EDUCATION

Rainforests in Danger

I have chosen the rainforests as of deforestation. Trees give us oxygen so to cut them down would lower the oxygen level of earth. It would also produce more carbon dioxide as trees take it in and give out oxygen. The rainforest is also home to many animals including birds, monkeys. In the rainforests there are other animals such as snakes, elephants, tigers, rhinoceros, and chimpanzees. These animals are affected as well because the forests are burning down because of the raising temperatures. When people log, they cut down at least a football sized pitch of cut down of trees. Heavy machines would move the soil around a lot creating erosion in the sand. Most of the trees cut down include cash crops that make palm oil and other oils. To protect them they could cut down a lot less trees to still make paper and furniture. This would still be able to make these products but a lot less trees would be cut down for them.

Yemen – is found in the Middle East. Part coastal and has boards with Oman to the East and Saudi Arabia to the North. Though the climate is very hot during the day it falls dramatically at night. Life expectancy is around 63 years but with civil war and lack of food in the country it is probably less.

The literacy rate is around 54% with far more men than women being able to read and write. Yemen's HDI is ranked 168 out of 177 countries, being the lowest ranked Arab country. This is largely due to the civil war breaking out in 2015. In 2018 the HDI stood at 0.463 which was a rise of 18% since 1990.

Crude oil, coffee, dried/salted fish and natural gases that Yemen export help with country with their GDP. In 2019 it was worth 27 billion US dollars. With petroleum being the biggest export, which is a big difference from 2015 when the war almost stopped production.

HEALTHCARE

1. Medical facilities lack access to basic resources like water and electricity.
2. The country has been at war since 2015 – air strikes are common hitting 39 hospitals.
3. Lack of sanitation means disease is high. Cases of diphtheria and cholera are common.
4. Rural areas especially in the northern mountains cannot feed their patients.
5. A lack of trained staff.
6. A lack of funding.

EDUCATION

1. A lack of public schools.
2. Private schools cost around 100,000 Yemeni riyals at year to attend.
3. A big gap between boys and girls going to school. Girls are sold into marriage.
4. A fear of violence or attack have put a lot off going to school. Though Yemen have signed up to the Safe School Declaration with another 83 countries to make going to school safe again.
5. Lack of pay for teachers. In 2019 UNICEF paid 136,000 teachers who hadn't been paid for 2 years.
6. Lack of food to help malnourished students.
