What is an Apprenticeship, exactly?

An Apprenticeship is a combined package of work and study. As an Apprentice, you'll be employed by a company and paid a wage for the work that you do. Apprentices are entitled to the same rights as other employees: a contract of employment and at least 20 days paid holiday per year, plus bank holidays.

How does it work?

You'll spend most of the week at work (usually a minimum of 30 hours) watching, learning and getting stuck in. You will be learning from colleagues across all levels of the business, typically working closely with someone more senior who will review your progress and coach you. You'll also spend time attending college, a University or training provider, training at work or online. Some Apprenticeships use a combination of options; your employer will decide which method works best. The Institute for Apprenticeships and Technical Education is an independent public body which works to ensure Apprenticeships are the best they can be. It develops Apprenticeship standards with employers that meet the needs of the companies and learners alike.

Which higher level Apprenticeships are available?

There are hundreds of different Apprenticeships on offer. From accounting to aerospace engineering, new Apprenticeships are being developed all the time.

Big companies like Rolls Royce, GlaxoSmithKline, Goldman Sachs and the BBC offer degree level Apprenticeships, but you'll also find smaller companies offering them too.

As well as being flexible and adaptable, you'll also need to be self-motivated during independent study, and be prepared to put what you learn into practice.

Choosing the right Apprenticeship

Choosing between University and an Apprenticeship?

You can apply for both at the same time!

There's nothing stopping students from applying to University through UCAS while keeping an eye out for interesting Apprenticeship vacancies on Unifrog.

Try not to think about it as University or an Apprenticeship. A degree or higher level Apprenticeship can lead to a degree-level qualification. Just remember, Apprenticeship schemes don't follow the same application and deadline patterns as applying to University - the deadline for an Apprenticeship application will be down to individual employers, and students apply for them direct.

Not restricted to one Apprenticeship application
