Dear Parent/Carer

Online Safety

We are writing to share important new information and resources to support families in keeping children safe online.

In partnership with the Department for Science, Innovation and Technology (DSIT), new guidance has been published on the 'Kids Online Safety' website to help parents and carers better understand and respond to online hate and misogyny.

This new section has been designed to support families and provide greater confidence when talking to children about their online experiences. The updated resources include clear, accessible advice on:

- What misogyny is
- Why it is important to talk to your child about misogyny
- How to spot the signs that your child may be encountering or engaging with harmful content
- Practical ways you can support your child

In addition, the website links to a range of trusted charities and expert organisations, where families can access specialist support, including helplines and further advice.

We encourage all parents and carers to explore these resources and use them as a starting point for open and supportive conversations at home.

You can access the updated guidance here: <https://kidsonlinesafety.campaign.gov.uk/>

Thank you for your continued support in helping to keep our young people safe.

Yours faithfully

Mrs M Goodes
